Check out the video below to see how players can experience the power of the “HyperMotion” technology in FIFA 22. The first FIFA, which was released for the very first time in 1998, aimed to create a unique and authentic football experience which revolutionised the way players and fans looked at the sport of football. It gave the fans the experience of playing the game in a first-person view, allowing them to feel like a part of the action, as they flicked through the hundreds of options available. Now, FIFA 21 takes this core experience and builds on it to give players the power to create and share their own player with the most accurate character models to date. FIFA 21 brings to life an all new match day experience that immerses players in the authentic experience of playing football. Players will now compete in pre-season, transfer market and cup matches, which will offer a new dynamic where players will play in live scenarios against other teams and create clubs by customising players to compete in real time in real leagues and championships. Players can customise their goalkeeper, create a new position and customize their players through the FIFA Skill Game. In addition, the FIFA Kick Pass will allow players to play a ball with their feet and launch strikes with the ability to kick the ball in the air and using the creativity of the new System of Play to create their own play. FIFA 21 also introduces the “The Journey” with the “Ultimate Team,” where players can live and breathe the life of a professional footballer throughout the season. Each game is authentic to the players’ team, with each player on the pitch accurately reflecting how they would look in real life. FIFA 21 is now available in all regions. The game will be available for the Xbox One, PlayStation 4, Nintendo Switch and PC, and will be available on day one for consoles and PC in North America. It will be available in the UK on August 28th and in Europe on August 29th.
