63, 38 L.Ed.2d 677 (1973); see Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 189(1) (1981). Nevertheless, a party cannot make an unenforceable oral promise for the present value of a future performance. Id. at § 189(2); see also Berger v. Sony Corp. of America, 369 F.3d 40, 57-58 (2d Cir.2004) (citing Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 189). It is undisputed that the $3,000,000 Promissory Note's terms did not provide for the present value of a future payment.[6] The Note's provisions made no mention of either the Principal Payment or Interest Payment, and the provision setting forth the payment schedule specified "such sums shall be paid in or about the next succeeding year." Thus, the only two payments for which interest was to be paid were the Cash Flow Payment and the Amortization Payment, and both of these payments were scheduled to become due in 2007 and 2008, respectively. According to the plain language of the Note, the Promissory Note could not provide for the present value of future interest payments because the Note itself did not provide for any such payments. BNSF contends that it should be allowed to recover the present value of the future interest payments based on the Note's provision that the Note's provisions were "subject to" amendments to the BNSF-Fleet-ProSource Letter of Intent. The Court disagrees. Although the Letter of Intent did make express commitments regarding the BNSF-Fleet-ProSource relationship, it made no provision regarding the repayment of Fleet's loan to ProSource. Therefore, the Letter of Intent could not affect the terms of the promissory note, and the provisions of the Note remain unambiguous. The terms of the Note, as quoted above, stated that the Note was "subject to the terms, covenants and conditions" of the Letter of Intent. Furthermore, the Letter of Intent specifically provided that ProSource and BNSF "shall have the right at any time to amend or waive any of the terms of this letter of intent, provided that no such amendment or waiver shall affect any obligation of the Company or BNSF under this agreement." The Letter of Intent also contained a merger clause, which stated that the Letter of Intent and the Agreement contain the entire agreement between ProSource, BNSF, and Fleet, and no other representation or warranty was made except as
